About Me

As a child, I wanted to be an artist. After exiting engineering, this current season left me seeking purpose. I returned to art as healing; a means of building resiliency and ability to navigate change. Through this expression, I found community and connection. I dream of a better tomorrow powered by STEAM (science, technology, engineering, art, and math).

Expression

Painting: Watercolor, Acrylic

Sewing: Handmade bags

Photos: Event, Portraits

Singing: Mezzosoprano

Random: Bartending

My Work

Beautiful, functional things and experiences - my work all contains themes of flow, balance, freedom, and joy. My current expression contains images (abstract and literal) of birds as I am moving between watercolors and acrylic paint; from paper to canvas to wood panels, I love the contrast in textures of materials. My goal with each piece is to provoke thought and layered discussion about why I created each piece.
